Specialist in international corporate taxation, I work daily on the reforms currently reshaping how groups manage their tax affairs: BEPS, the global minimum tax (Pillar Two), and the new allocation of taxing rights (Pillar One).

My research and publications have given me a deep command of these rules, while my teaching and outreach experience has taught me to translate them into clear, actionable insights for non-specialist audiences.

I am currently seeking a position in which I can apply my knowledge and my analytical, synthesis, and communication skills.
